Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing in support of Microsoft and the antitrust settlement proposed. This settlement satisfies the needs of the public by promoting competition while at the same time allows Microsoft to maintain its status as a technological leader.

The changes suggested in the settlement seem to be specifically targeted toward Microsoft's competitive practices. Under one of the terms, Microsoft is asked to give access to internal interfaces of Windows software. Additionally, Microsoft will use a uniform price list when licensing Windows out to the twenty largest computer makers in the nation, and will agree not to retaliate against companies that use sell or promote non-Microsoft products. With requirements such as the ones stated above, Microsoft is obviously not getting off easy.

I believe that this proposal and the potential benefits of its terms satisfy the needs of public. I hope that you will support this settlement.

Sincerely,

D. Brett and Judith King
